What are cookies?

Any type of data storage and retrieval device that is used on a user's terminal equipment (for example, a computer, mobile phone or tablet) for the purpose of storing information and retrieving already stored information.

The term referred to here as cookies should be understood in the broad sense, including other similar technologies such as local shared objects or flash cookies as well as the web beacons or bugs, use of fingerprinting techniques, that is, techniques for taking the digital fingerprint of the device.

What are cookies used for?

Banco Bilbao Vizcaya Argentaria, S.A. ("BBVA"), owner of this website, uses third-party cookies to improve the user experience and facilitate the application for job offers with LinkedIn.

Type of Cookie

1. Depending on the entity that manages them:

- First party cookies: These are those that are sent to the user's terminal equipment from a computer or domain managed by the editor itself and from which the service requested by the user is provided.
- Third-party cookies: These are those sent to the user's electronic device from a computer or domain that is not managed by the editor, but by another entity that handles data obtained through the cookies. In the event that cookies are served from a computer or domain managed by the editor itself, but the information collected through them is managed by a third party, they cannot be considered as own cookies, if the third party uses them for its own purposes, such as the improvement of the services it provides or for the provision of services, for example, of an advertising nature, in favor of other entities.

2. Depending on the purpose:

- Cookies técnicas: These are those that allow the user to navigate through a website, platform or application and use the different options or services that exist therein, including those that the editor uses to allow the management and operation of the website and enable its functions and services, such as, for example, controlling traffic and data communication, identifying the session, accessing restricted access parts, remembering the elements that make up an order, carrying out the purchase process of an order, managing payment, controlling fraud linked to the security of the service, making the request for registration or participation in an event, counting visits for the purposes of billing licenses for the software with which the service works (website, platform or application), using security elements during navigation, storing content for the dissemination of videos or sound, enabling dynamic content (for example, animation for loading a text or image) or sharing content through social networks.

- Preference or personalization cookies: These are those that allow information to be remembered so that the user accesses the service with certain characteristics that may differentiate their experience from that of other users, such as, for example, the language, the products that may be of interest to them, the content of the service depending on the type of browser through which they access the service or the region from which they access the service, etc..

3. Depending on the duration:

- Session cookies: These are a type of cookies designed to collect and store data while the user accesses a website. They are usually used to store information that is only of interest to keep for the provision of the service requested by the user on a single occasion (for example, a list of purchased products) and they disappear at the end of the session..
- Persistent cookies: A type of cookie in which data continue to be stored in the electronic device and can be accessed and processed for a period defined by the cookie owner, and can range from a few minutes to several years.

How long are cookies kept?

Cookies will be used solely and exclusively for the time necessary to fulfill the purposes for which they have been indicated in each cookie. Regarding third-party cookies, the retention periods can be consulted in the previous section.

How to manage consent again?

Please note that we will only use cookies on your device if you have given your consent via the banner.

The above, except in cases where cookies are necessary for navigation on the terminal equipment and/or to provide the service requested by the user (technical cookies). Technical cookies are exempt from compliance with the obligations established in article 22 of the LSSI regarding the duty to inform and obtain consent.

Although we will retain the selection made by the user for a maximum of 24 months, we will periodically request the update of your consent. Likewise, if after having obtained your consent there is a change in the cookies, in the purposes of their use or in the third parties, we will request your consent again.

For third-party cookies, please note that the revocation procedures are managed and controlled exclusively by each provider. To delete them, you can do so from the browser options or from the system offered by the third party itself.

In any case, the user may, at any time, allow, block or delete cookies as well as erase their browsing data (including cookies) from the browser installed on their terminal. Consult the options and instructions offered by your browser for this purpose:

- Explorer
- Firefox
- Safari

Deactivating all cookies does not prevent browsing through the service..

Do you want additional information about the processing of your data?

Some cookies may involve the processing of personal data, that is, when the user is identified by a name or email address that identifies him/her (for example, because he/she is a registered user), through the IP address or when unique identifiers are used that allow users to be distinguished from each other and to track them individually (for example, advertising ID).

To learn more about the processing of personal data, such as possible international transfers, please consult our Personal Data Protection Policy.
